REV. CHASE TALKS FOR CONFERENCE

Kingston Methodist Minister Tells Governor His District Is Ready to Need of Enforcement Law That Miller Afterward Signed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, April 5.—The Rev. P. N.
Chase of Kingston representing the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, argued in favor of the three prohibition enforcement bills which were signed yesterday. The Rev. Chase appeared at a hearing in the executive chamber before the bills were law and urged favorable consideration upon them by the executive. He called attention to the many letters he had received from the mothers and wives in Kingston asking him to do something to stop the illegal traffic in liquor. Rev.
Chase spoke as follows:

Your excellency, the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is in conference now. The very first thing that they did after becoming organized was to send a telegram to you, governor, and the legislature thanking you for all that had been done. Since it appeared in the public print that you were to have a hearing today, they immediately appointed a committee, my name is Chase, Dr. Mosher here and Mr. Synder, to come here, not because we believe you would veto the bill, but for you to know that back of you were the more than three hundred ministers of the New York Conference and more than sixty-five thousand members of the Methodist Church in that section of your state. There are six conferences in the state in whole or in part of New York state, and this is one of them taking from fourth avenue and up the river, counties on either side up to Albany. We are sure it was a bill that you wanted to sign but we wanted you to know that back of you was the moral and religious element of this state. You have read your excellency, of a time back in the olden days when a prophet went out one morning and his servant saw the chariots and horses of the enemy about him and he said, "Alas, Master, what shall we do?" But the prophet said, "Say not, Brother, that they be with us more than that they be with them," and we wanted you to feel that more than the religious element of this state were behind you.
I see your plan is to see that the bill should be signed, and then if there is any imperfection to see that something new should be done, and not jeopardize again the passing of the bill I live in the city of Kingston and in some way they think I am the one to look after things. If I should show you some letters that have come to me from mothers and sisters and wives, saying "Can't you do something, my husband goes to certain places and gets drunk and comes home intoxicated five nights a week," another one, evidently a member of the Roman Catholic Church, says, "My husband gets drunk at such place and it incapacitates him to do his business." Another letter says that they are selling us here in a hotel and our children that did not drink before are getting intoxicated.

There has been two or three deaths from intoxicated men driving autos in the last two or three months, and getting it right there on the ground, and we believe, your excellency, that you are going to give us some relief.
I do not want to take your time, but I wish you might hear these brethren who are with me. We left the conference at their request.

WERE ALL "MINSEN."

Highland Women Come to Town for Jolly Time.

Twenty-three representative women of the village of Highland came to town Monday in the Newburgh-Marlborough-Highland autobus of John A. DuBois, took dinner at the Hotel Stuyvesant, had a photograph taken as they were posed by Christy Winne alongside of the hotel on the Fair street side by Lou Merillat, of Pennington's studio, and later all attended the moving picture matinee at Keeney's. They started about 5:30 o'clock. The ladies were guests of "Miss" Mary Pratt. It was stated. The hotel register shows the following were in the jolly party, each name having "Miss" as a prefix, because it was said they had left their husbands at home: Fannie N. Bruyn, Nettie Traver, Belle Brinkerhoff, Libbie Rhodes, Mattie Schantz, Jennie Thatcher, Jennie Hasbrouck, Jennie Wilkie, Dora Wilkie, Florence Wilkie, Mattie Farnham, Catherine Frost, Eva Stair, Bertha Weismiller, Dora Haight, Lillian Raymond, Allie Wilcox, Mrs. Van Wagner, Mabel Hasbrouck, Minnie Maynard, Carrie Carpenter, Miss Mary Pratt.

CAMPAIGN FOR CATHOLIC CHARITY

A campaign to secure funds with which to prosecute the elaborate scheme for Catholic charitable activities that was inaugurated last June, will be renewed with enthusiasm this month.

A most creditable record of philanthropic effort to shown by the committee in charge of the several divisions of social service that are all under the immediate direction of His Grace the Most Rev. Archbishop Hayes. The enthusiasm with which Ulster county Catholics entered into this work last year resulted in an excess of the quota of 5,000.

The rural sections of the diocese have been the very cordial concern of the archbishop, who has bestowed considerable help to hospitals, and has provided in all the county districts for the care of all classes of needy by the establishment of county agencies.

These institutions have already accomplished a great amount of good.
The archbishop will open the campaign at Kingston with a personal appeal. At this exercise an illustrated display of the charitable works in which the organization has engaged will be presented.

A preliminary meeting of the county officers and the speakers who are to convey the message will be held at the Knights of Columbus Home on Tuesday evening, April 5, at 8 o'clock.

A BROKEN PICTURE.

Novel Advertisement in Columbia Shop.

In the window of the Columbia Shop on Fair street are several very interesting photographs taken by Orton G. Orr who is living at Big Indian. Mr. Orr is deeply interested in the wild animals of the Catskills and has a large collection of very novel photographs of wild animals in very unusual poses. Spending a great deal of his time in tramping and touring through the mountains he has also secured some wonderful mountain scenes. Mr. McDonough, proprietor of the Columbia Shop, and a friend of Mr. Orr, on a recent trip to Big Indian posed for a very unusual photograph which is shown in the window. Early one morning Mr.
Orr invited Mr. McDonough to visit a nearby waterfall which had frozen over forming a miniature Niagara Falls. When Mr. McDonough arrived at the waterfall he found frozen on the ice a number of photographs from Columbia advertisements. The photograph shows Mr. McDonough standing looking at the sheet of ice apparently witnessing a wonderful vision. The photograph is very clever and a copy has been sent to the Columbia people. In the photograph the pictures of numerous of the Columbia artists appear to be frozen in the ice but actually they were only posted on the surface.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 5, 1921.

The attitude of Governor Miller relative to supervision of companies doing a money order business proves that the chief executive believes that what is right for one is right for the other. He does not believe in discrimination one way or the other. He is not drastic in his statements but they ring with intelligence. What he believes in, when all is said and done, is fairness.

The legislators are trying as best they can to get their work done so that adjournment may be taken April 15. It looks now as if the date might be fixed for then but it may be that it will be changed for a week later. At any rate 1921 will not be one to go down into history as long drawn out. The people have never favored sessions that have dwindled along into the latter part of May. In the minds of the people it does not appear to be necessary.

While there is unquestionably a demand for patronage, it would seem as if there had been less pressure this year than ever. If there has been the usual number of aspirants for positions they have not been so much in evidence as heretofore. One thing is certain and that is, the governor has taken time to do the work at hand and has not given all his time to this problem. This probably explains why he has handled the big things so well. The matter of distributing patronage, patronage that must be distributed under the law, is some task and a task not agreeable to everybody. Former Governor Black used to say that for every position given out one ingrate and ten enemies were made.

BE TRUTHFUL.

No man who is truthful needs a press agent or any advertising medium to convince the people that he is a person in whom they may place confidence. As a rule his demeanor will denote character. Unless it does, ordinarily, all publicity methods known will not help in the long run. Few ever depart from first impressions. When we meet a man whose appearance bespeaks integrity we seldom change our minds. That will occur occasionally, but the instances are rare. Nothing in the size of type, however, from agate to the largest font, will get him on top and keep him there unless he is truthful.

With proper advertising, a yellow dog without pedigree can be sold as the best registered kennel product. This unquestionably is so, but the sale can only be made once. The same rule applies to the man heralded as great but who after he is placed upon a pinnacle fails to meet requirements. From that moment he is numbered among those found and "not wanted." An unlimited supply of fak and argument may be used to explain the why and wherefore, but to the public has purchased a bogus article it will not be fooled into any subsequent transaction.

Today the people are demanding the truth. They want the facts as they are and not as they might wish they were. Intelligent people can see no benefit in coloring any situation to make it appear right if it is wrong. If it is wrong the truth might just as well be known. Hiding it makes the problem more difficult to adjust later. Putting off is always dangerous and there is a natural tendency of a great many to evade. The honest man, however, is the man who seeks the truth and when he finds it is willing to declare it frankly and openly.

The whole trend, in politics, in business, and in every walk, seems to be for truth. Not aside from that, and as a personal proposition, truth has a tremendous value. The man who is truthful has standing and it speaks no difference who he is or what he is, and the man who is not truthful has no standing no matter who he is or what he is. It has been said that a liar is worse than a thief and it can be added that it is harder to catch a liar than it is to catch a thief. To use that "short and snappy word," telling it at any individual seems to be more desirable as an accessory at least than any other charge that could be made.

The man whose word is good to use those who count. If he is prominent and it is said that he is truthful it establishes his standing, and if he is not prominent it emphasizes his personal worth immeasurably. As in the standing of the truthful man, there is no room for debate, for there is no community where there is not one whose shining characteristics is "the truth." And when this is said of any of us, we should be in respect of the people who count and our bank deposits will not have any influence one way or the other for truth means character.

MISS STILLMAN

TAKES TO WOODS

14 years old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman, whose dramatic divorce suit is now pending, is in hiding in the woods of Northern Woodstock, according to apparently authentic sources.

This is said to be at the hunting lodge of Harold F. McCormick, millionaire Chicagoan, at Island Lake, Wis.

Reports received here declare that Miss Stillman, in order to conceal her identity, is posing as the maid of Miss Harriet McCormick, her school chum.

Members of the McCormick family deny that Miss Stillman is posing as the maid of Miss McCormick but they are said to have declared that they know where Miss Stillman is and are aiding her in hiding her whereabouts. Reports received here from New York declare that the betrothal of Miss Stillman to Harold F. McCormick, Jr., will be announced as soon as the Stillman matters are adjusted.

It is declared that Miss Stillman, Miss McCormick and others members of the McCormick family reached there last week.

As we go to press with this installment of the Burroughs Nature Club Notes, there is an unmistakable feeling of sadness and regret at the death of our beloved leader, John Burroughs. His life and writings have long been a constant source of inspiration, and he has helped to instill into many of us a truer and deeper appreciation of the great outdoors. In this little column alone, his influence has been felt by thousands, who have followed with keenest interest the daily installments of the Nature Notes. The world mourns the passing of the great naturalist, but the Burroughs Nature Club feels in a special manner the loss of one who, for so long has been their guide and counselor.

The members of the advisory board, who have been associated with Mr. Burroughs for some time past in this Nature Club work, will endeavor to preserve his ideas and teachings in this column and make it a daily tribute to him, forever enshrining his memory in the hearts of those who through him have been led to realize the joys contained in an understanding of nature.

1. Do moles have any natural enemies to keep them in check? The mole has little to fear from predatory animals, largely because it seldom comes out of its safe burrow. Foxes and coyotes do feed on them somewhat, digging into a shallow runway if they happen to find some evidence of the mole's being at work nearby. Very few hawks and owls seem to enjoy their flesh. The great foe of moles is floods from streams which overflow their banks and fill the mole's runway drowning out its inhabitants.

2. What is the object of inoculating soil?

Soil contains some nitrogen, a rich food for plants, but in time after many crops, this natural supply of nitrogen gets eaten up. It can be restored by spreading a nitrogenous fertilizer; or by mixing in a soil known to be rich in nitrogen and growing thereon a crop that will manufacture new nitrogen, instead of absorbing what little already exists. Alfalfa is the best crop for the purpose. Sometimes the soil itself is inoculated with earth taken from a field where alfalfa has grown, or sometimes seed is soaked in a liquid preparation, and when grown, it produces a nitrogen supply in the soil.

3. Are the humming birds found in different parts of the world alike?

The humming birds do not differ much in their anatomy, but their tints differ as much as do those of precious stones. In the East we have only the ruby-throated; but in the West there is a beautiful variety. In southern Arizona, for instance, is found the Rivoli humming bird, the male of which has the top of its head metallic purplish, and its throat a bright emerald green; and along the Pacific coast, the black-chinned is one of the handsomest with metallic violet, blue, and scarlet green tones on the lower part of its throat, while the upper part is velvety black. It is hard to choose among these many Western hummers which is loveliest.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. What are the proper birds to spring?

2. What is Remembrance plant?

3. The birds use thorns on their feet with the deliberate idea of making the most terrible?

No, this theory belongs with the so persistent. The rattlesnake is immune to its own venom, and for this simple reason, cannot commit suicide.

3. How do young opossums get Baby opossums—usually a "harkhelpless at birth, and their mother, a marsupial, or pouched animal like the kangaroo, at once places them for safety and further development in her pouch. Though so tiny at birth—only about half an inch long—they have well formed mouth, and immediately begin to suckle, clinging firmly to the mother. In three or four weeks they have grown as big as mice, but continue to live

CHAPEL OBSERVES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

The fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of the Poncehockie chapel was duly observed on Sunday, April 3. The exact date of the former occasion was March 29, 1871, but for the convenience of the congregation and many of the old friends of this Sunday school, the anniversary was held on the Sunday following the real date. At the morning service, the pastor, the Rev. F. W. Moot, delivered a memorial to the host of faithful workers of the past sixty-seven years' history of the school. It having been organized in 1854. His theme was "A Memorial to Our Predecessors," text, Rev. 14:13, "They rest from their labors and their works do follow them." In well chosen words, he emphasized the value of the faithful services of men and women who continued this Bible school through three generations, and which finally resulted in the organization of the Poncehockie Union Church, November 7, 1915.

At the session of the Bible school, the pastor addressed the boys and girls, giving them a brief history of the school and the church, urging them to be faithful and to treasure in their minds the events of this fiftieth anniversary that perhaps at the seventy-fifth or possibly the one-hundredth anniversary they might be present and recall this day.

At the evening service, the large audience filled the church. Many were present who thirty, forty or fifty years ago had been members of the Sunday school. The theme of the evening was "Fond Reminiscences." Miss Sadie Schutt, who for nearly twenty years has been superintendent of the primary department, spoke of the past history of that part of the school, recalling the names of the past superintendents and teachers of the little children. She referred feelingly and beautifully of the work of Mrs. Edward Tompkins, Charles M. DuBois, who has been a member of the school for about forty years, and who at three periods of its history had been its superintendent, and in behalf of the superintendents of the past, recalling several incidents of interest.

The Rev. Mr. Moot addressed the audience, selecting as his text, Ps. 63:6, "When I Remember." In the course of his remarks he called attention to the pictures which hung on the walls of the auditorium. Calvin Tompkins, who as president of the Newark Lime and Cement Company, had been instrumental in the erection of the beautiful chapel. Charles Staples who was the head carpenter in the construction of the building and who also was very active in the school. Mrs. Charles Staples who fifty years ago was one of the leaders among women workers and by whose efforts money was raised for the pipe organ. Mrs. Edward Tompkins, the faithful and beloved primary superintendent. Mrs. William M. Gokey, who also was prominent among the workers and a teacher in the school. Mrs. Eliza Hutton, who for fifty years was interested in this work. He also called attention to pictures of the church as well as a certificate of attendance which had been issued in 1879 and contained the names of about forty honor pupils, two of whom, Mrs. Charles Staples and Ray Powley, had attended every session of the school that year. There were Bibles belonging to the school which had been purchased by the "North Haven S. S." in 1861. He also exhibited records of the attendance of the school, the oldest being of the year 1861. The one of greatest interest was of 1871—fifty years ago when the school moved into the new chapel. The enrollment of that year was 256. From this record the pastor read many names of teachers and scholars familiar to many of the older persons in the audience. Many of these have passed to their heavenly reward, others are living in various parts of the world and some were present to hear their names mentioned in the roll call of fifty years ago. He asked all who were members of the school fifty years ago and present at this service to arise, and the following responded: Dr. George C. Baeten, Miss Mary Basten, William Bilyou, George Bilyou, Mrs. William Brewster, Mrs. Charles M. DuBois, Walter Gill, Miss Kate Jarrold, Mrs. J. T. Johnson, Charles King, John Kain, Mrs. Emma Leele, Mrs. Mary Murdoch, William Nickerson, Lindsey Staples, Mrs. Mary Sheppard, Ralph Terwilliger, William D. Terwilliger, John R. Tammany and Miss Gertrude Van Keurel. It was an impressive sight that will be long remembered.

The following names were read as those who had been superintendents of the school: Dr. Newman Abbey, John R. Seebing, Cornelius Van Keuren, David B. Abbey, Lambert J. DuBois, James C. Mould, F. H. Griffin, Ebert E. Lewis, George Tappen, Eugene N. Deyo, Charles M. DuBois, Dayton Murray, Frank P. Elmendorf and George A. Lerch. In concluding his remarks the pastor feelingly spoke of the labors of these faithful ones of the past, and said many had gone out into the world from this school and community better equipped for life's battle because of what this school had been to them, and from time to time some man or woman has passed to the life beyond carrying with him or her a better character, the result of the teaching received in this Bible school.

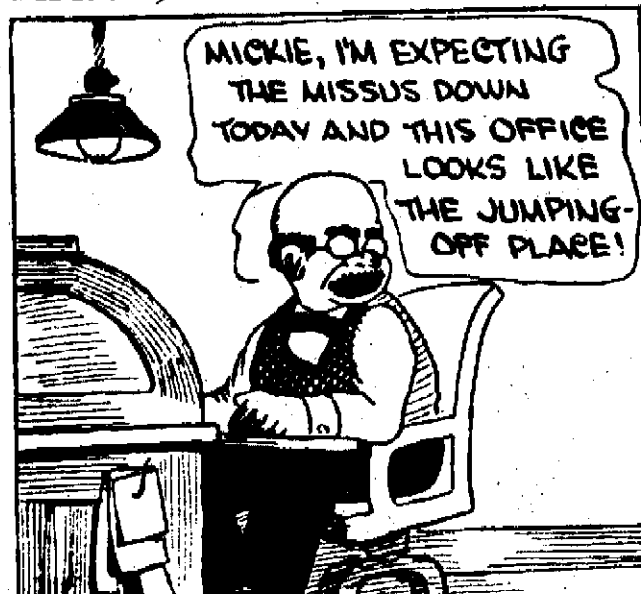

During both services the organist, Mrs. C. M. DuBois, and the choir rendered several selections which were very favorably received by the large audience. The members of the choir were: Miss Jessie Parkhurst, Mrs. L. Thatcher, Mrs. A. Knappton, Mrs. F. W. Moot, Mrs. Charles King, the Misses Ethel and Fanny Kells, Margaret Leavitt, Thomas Emmick, Evelyn Way, Mary Knappton and Frank Anderson and Richard Hawn.

The decorations were exceptionally beautiful and were in charge of Harry C. Staples. On the platform were Easter lilies and evergreens, and Sunday school banners which had been made by Mrs. Charles Staples fifty years ago. After the close of the service a social hour was enjoyed in which many old friends renewed their acquaintance.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XXIV.—MISSOURI

WHETHER Missouri was actually visited by De Soto at the time of his discovery of the Mississippi is not definitely known. The first authentic exploration of this territory was by the French, Joliet and Father Marquette in 1673. French settlers gradually located in Missouri, in 1764 St. Louis being settled. This was one year after Spain acquired from France the Louisiana Territory of which Missouri was a part.

Colonization greatly increased after the ordinance of 1787, which excluded slavery from the Northwest territory, as this naturally deflected many to the territory west of the Mississippi.

The question continued to hold the stage in Missouri history. After the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 added this vast western area to the United States, emigration increased to such an extent that in 1820 Missouri formed a state government and applied for admission to the Union. Bitter antagonism immediately arose in congress against the admission of another slave state. On the other hand the slavery advocates pointed out that Maine had just been taken into the Union as a free state and one state would therefore balance the other. A final settlement was made by the famous Missouri compromise, which accepted Missouri as a slave state but prohibited slavery in the rest of the territory north of a line extending from the southern boundary of Missouri to the Rocky Mountains. Indeed, it was this question which, temporarily smothered at that time, burst forth in the Civil war.

Missouri is in the forefront of the important states in national politics as it has eighteen electoral votes for president. It is one of 36,000 square miles.

Up 'tho' street to the grocery man."

Dad then looked around and grinned,

He knew his son just had him pinned.

"We can, my lad, the light is better, I'll write CARL MILLER & SON a letter."

In a day or so, or perhaps better,

Sure enough we got a letter.

It started in to tell us that They lived in a neat little six-room flat.

"How much will it cost," it read "to install

A light in each room and one in the hall.

I've promised to give my family a treat,

This sure is one that is hard to beat."

We answered the letter and told him that

'Twould cost fifty dollars to wire the flat.

He called at our office the very next night

Signed a light contract, our price was slight.
